

Alamance County Public Libraries Wireless Access Policy

Alamance County Public Libraries is pleased to offer wireless Internet (Wi-Fi) access to its patrons. This service is free of charge and is accessible during each library's normal hours of operation.

Library users may also be able to access non-Library wireless networks within the library. Use of these networks within Library facilities is also subject to state and federal regulations as well as the Alamance County Public Libraries Internet Access Policy.

Like most public wireless "hotspots," the Library's wireless network is not secure. Information sent to or from your laptop can be intercepted by anyone with a wireless device and the appropriate software. We strongly encourage users to observe standard security practices in relation to passwords and credit cards. Users should also make sure their devices have the latest virus protection software and system patches installed.

Users should also note:

- There is no guarantee that all wireless devices will work with the network.
- Use of the wireless network is entirely at the risk of the user.
- There is no guarantee that wireless access will be available in all areas of each library building.
- The Library assumes no responsibility for the safety or security of a patron's personal equipment or data resulting from the connection to the wireless network.
- The Library is not responsible for any losses incurred from using the wireless network.
- Staff can provide general information for connecting to the wireless network but cannot troubleshoot problems with your network equipment or make changes to the configuration or settings of your equipment.

Use of the wireless network indicates agreement with the Alamance County Public Libraries Internet Access Policy, and the Alamance County Public Libraries Behavior Policy.
