Resources (formerly resources for parents impacted by school closings).

Updated March 25, 2020

As you know, the libraries closed on March 18, and we have been very busy exploring ways we could continue to serve the community while limiting access to our physical buildings. We have continued to collect resources for you, and will continue to update this page as often as possible.

New additions will be in red at the top of the list. Please be sure to read the description to know if a resource is right for your child, and remember to always check a new website to determine if it is appropriate.

The following resources are available to help:

Fender: This iconic guitar company is offering three months of lessons free. Click here to get the code.

MCN: This digital publication serves museum professionals. A recent blog post (continually updated) lists free virtual museum resources as well as access to online collections. Access the blog post with links here.

Stuck Inside: A recently founded Facebook Group for sharing free educational resources. You must have a Facebook account to participate. See their Facebook Page here.

Preschool Inspirations: This blog contains links to several kid-friendly YouTube videos. Access the article here. Please preview any video before sharing it with your child!

Ranger Rick: This well respected children's magazine, a publication of the National Wildlife Federation, is offering free digital subscriptions to the magazine through June. Click here for more information.

Kentucky Association for Gifted Education: This organization is maintaining a list of resources for teaching gifted and talented kids at home, broken up by age level and including links. See the list here.

K-12 Distance Education by subject: Melissa Burger, a k-12 school librarian, collected distance education resources by school subject, and is sharing them here.

Internet Archive: This website was founded to make a true internet library of digitized materials available to scholars and researchers. They recently announced that all borrowing limits on titles would be removed, creating a National Emergency Library to provide digital books to students and the public. Visit the NEL here.

Wizards of the Coast: This entertainment company is offering online Magic: The Gathering and Dungeons and Dragons events. Find out more here.

Common Sense Media: This nonprofit organization is dedicated to providing resources to families and children. Find an excellent list of education and entertainment options for your kids and family here.

Bravewriter: This online program is designed to enhance the parent-child relationship through the teaching of writing. This week they are offering the Homebound virtual conference for free. Session happen daily, and you can join live or watch the recorded sessions here.

North Carolina Department of Natural and Cultural Resources: The NC DNCR offers the NC Learn@Home website as a gathering place for resources for parents, children, and educators. This site also offers virtual assistance from state librarians and educators. Visit the page here.

We are Teachers: weareteachers.com has a big list of children's authors that are offering online readalouds and activities. There is a section just for elementary school-age kids who might not want to sit through storytime or a picture book. See the complete list here.

Digital Escape Rooms: A number of libraries and organizations are offering digital escape rooms for bored at home kids. Here is one based on Alice in Wonderland, and here is a Harry Potter themed escape room.

Michigan Science Center: The Michigan Science Center is offering virtual science lessons with large-scale science demonstrations every afternoon at 2:30 p.m. Visit their website here.

Artsy.net: This site posted an article on Ten University Art Classes You Can Take for Free. These are university level classes suitable for older teens or adults.

Audible.com: One of the best known sources for audiobooks, Audible is offering free streaming of children's titles on desktop, laptop, phone, or tablet. Visit https://stories.audible.com/start-listen.

Sebco eBooks: Another eBook platform that is making its children's content freely available during this time. Click here and enter the login name "keepreading", password "sebco". On the next page where you are prompted for your library card number, enter "#1".

OxfordOwl: Another free eBook library for children ages 3 - 11. See the library here.

Lakeshore Learning: This well-known educational resource merchant has over 1000 items available for free download, including lesson, activities, customizable flash cards, and worksheets. Visit them here.

Khan Academy: This well-known site offers free videos to support kids learning. Check out their resources here.

MysteryScience: This website is offering all of their science lessons to anyone for free during this time. Access their programs here.

America's Test Kitchen: If you find yourself spending more time in the kitchen, invite your kids to join you! This favorite site has a children's page that is full of kid-friendly recipes and ideas for making your kitchen into a place for learning. Visit their page here.

Cosmic Kids Yoga: A YouTube channel with videos of fun yoga and mindfulness activities for kids. Visit the YouTube page here.

North Carolina Baptist Aging Ministry: This agency has set up a hotline for older adults to call if they are feeling isolated. The hotline is available from 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. daily at (866) 578-HOPE (4673)

Spectrum: For families without access to the internet, Spectrum is offering free services. Here is an article published by WKBW, Buffalo, NY about the program:

https://www.wkbw.com/news/national/coronavirus/spectrumto-offer-free-broadband-and-wifi-to-students-without-it. The phone number listed in the article for more information and to enroll: 1-844-488-8398.

Amazing Educational Resources: This is a Facebook group started by Nick Hooper from the University of Texas at Austin. The description given for the group is to be an "...educator community to share the good, bad, and ugly about the many teacher resources on the internet." This group originally shared a Google Doc of educational companies offering free services during the school shutdown. With over 300 resources already listed, this group moved the document to the web. Visit www.amazingeducationalresources.com to view the document.

Zoom: This videoconferencing company is providing its tools to K-12 schools for free. View the article in Forbes Magazine here: Exclusive: Zoom CEO Eric Yuan Is Giving K-12 Schools His Videoconferencing Tools For Free

Scholastic: Scholastic has launched a new website, https://classroommagazines.scholastic.com/support/learnathome.html, offering 20 days of articles, stories, videos and learning challenges to help keep children engaged. Activities are offered by grade level and will be updated regularly.

Storyline: An award-winning children's literacy website, Storyline offers videos of actors reading children's books. Activity guides are included for each title to strengthen learning and comprehension. Visit www.storylineonline.net to access the videos and learn more about the organization.

Kate Messner: As a former classroom teacher and celebrated author, Kate Messner has put together a library of resources for kids, families, teachers and librarians. Access the website at https://www.katemessner.com/read-wonder-and-learn-favorite-authors-illustrators-share-resources-for-learning-anywhere-spring-2020/

Deschutes Public Library: Staff have put together a web page of YouTube and Facebook Live events being offered by children's authors. Visit the page at DPL Children's Authors - Read Alouds and other FaceTime Live Events.

Mental Floss: This website calls itself ..."an encyclopedia of everything" and promises to offer "...smart, funny and shareable content in an upbeat and witty environment." They recently published an article  $\underline{12}$  World-Class Museums You Can Visit Online

Cincinnati Zoo and Botanical Garden: The Cincinnati Zoo is offering virtual safaris on Facebook Live everyday at 3:00 p.m. EST. Each day they will feature an animal and offer activities you can do at home. Follow their Facebook Page or visit their website: http://cincinnatizoo.org/ for more information.

MAKE Paducah: This private business offers a DIY painting studio, meeting space, and a gift boutique in Paducah, Kentucky. Due to school closures, they are offering Facebook Live art lessons for free. Check out their Facebook Page for more details.

The Shirley Journey: This blog recently posted a "30 Days of LEGO© Play" calendar. The article also gives good tips on cleaning LEGO©. Read the article here or go directly to the printable calendar.

Virtual Field Trips: This google document has been shared widely on Facebook, but the original creator is not linked in the resource. The links in the document do access to the resources listed. Find the document here.

Kottke.org: Founded in 1998, this blog is produced by Jason Kottke and dedicated to covering "...the essential people, inventions, performances, and ideas..." that increase human potential. A recent article, Paris Museums Put 100,000 Images Online for Unrestricted Public Use gives links to Paris Musées, a collection of 14 museums in Paris that have made copies of their artwork available online for free.

Science Mom and Math Dad: Science Mom has a YouTube channel with videos on different science concepts for elementary age kids. Science Mom is teaming up with Math Dad to offer a daily show featuring science and math activities, crafts, and games. Follow their Facebook page: https://www.facebook.com/TheScienceMom/ for the live session, or visit Science Mom on YouTube for the recorded videos.

Walkabouts: Walkabouts are active learning adventures for kids in grades K-2. These movement rich activities are being made available free of charge to families and teachers during the extended school closures. Click here for more information on how to access these free resources.

Emmy Kaster: This children's book author and illustrator is using her Instagram account to highlight resources available to keep children engaged in literature. Visit her kidlitresources to see what's available.

Growing Book by Book: This website was founded by a teacher with over 20 years of experience in early childhood educational settings. The site is dedicated to meeting the needs of every growing reader, and they offer resources for infants to beginning readers here.

Anne Frank House Virtual Tour: This virtual tour highlights the house where Anne Frank hid from the Nazis for two years. Visit the tour here.

60+ Awesome Websites for Teaching and Learning Math: The best math websites, according to teachers. Read the article here.

Space Station Explorers: This site featured stories read by astronauts from the International Space Station. Access the videos and find out more here.

New York Public Library eBooks: The NYPL has made a catalog of over 300,000 eBooks available to anyone with or without a library card. You must have a device to which you can download apps. Read the article here.

The Great Courses: This website provides quality educational programs for people of all ages. Check out their courses and sign up for a free one month trial here.

Metropolitan Opera: The Met is offering free streams from its catalog of HD recorded operas. The operas will be broadcast every evening at 7:30 p.m. from their webpage: https://www.metopera.org/.

For parents and teens: USA Today had an article about Netflix Party, which will allow you or your teens to have watch parties remotely. Read the article here.

For parents: Consumer Reports has a Coronavirus Resource Hub that is available free of charge. Access it here.

NCDPI: The North Carolina Department of Public Instruction has a webpage with resources for remote learning. Access it here.

School Library Journal: SLJ published an article on March 11, 2020 entitled A Mini-Clearinghouse on Coronavirus, Created by Two School Librarians. The article is geared more towards library staff, but the resources will work for all. See the article here.

NPR: NPR reporter Cory Turner interviewed several experts to find out what kids needed to hear about the coronavirus. The result was a comic. View (and print) a version for your kids here. If you would like to listen to or read the segment that led to the comic, you can find it here.

World Book Encyclopedia Online: This resource has been made available for a limited time for free to members of our library community. Access the free online encyclopedia here. If prompted, enter wbsupport for the username and distancelearn as the password. They are also offering free access to a video on Distance-Learning Resources for Parents.

Free Code Camp: In addition to their free, online learn to code curriculum, Free Code Camp recently posted an article "Here are 450 lvy League courses you can take online right now for free."

NASA: The entire media library of NASA is currently available for free. Images, videos and audios are available and include interviews with astronauts and gorgeous photos of celestial objects. Access the media library here.

EBook Friendly: This site posted an article in 2016 listing 25 sites for free public domain eBooks. Items in the public domain include older titles, many of which are considered classics. Read the article here.

Art At Home: @MrsVelazquezArt is an art teacher who has posted an online document with links to art contests, games, education, and art at home, among others. Access the document with links here.

Mo Willems: This beloved author of the Pidgeon books (among others) is currently the Kennedy Center Education Artist-in-Residence, and he is offering a daily Lunch Doodle, Monday through Friday at 1:00 p.m. Don't forget to bring some paper and crayons! Access the Lunch Doodle page here.

Local Resources:

Alamance County Public Libraries' Resources: Visit ACPL on Facebook for our live storytimes. Follow our page here. ACPL offers a wide selection of digital resources including eBooks, eAudiobooks, and digital magazines for all ages. Information on online resources can be found at https://www.alamancelibraries.org/reference-research/online-research-tools/ or contact your local branch.

Senior Shopping Hours: Several area stores are offering special times for seniors to shop. Target has designated the first hour of the morning on Wednesdays, Dollar General has designated the first hour of each day they are open, and Steve's Garden market is offering a senior hour the first hour of each day they are open. See a full list published in the Burlington Times News here.

United Way of Alamance County: The UWAC has set up a special campaign, #Help4Alamance, to assess and provide for needs in the community. See their post here.

ABSS Coronavirus School Nutrition: ABSS has posted information about lunch sites that are available to children (under the age of 18) Monday through Friday. Sites are drop in and pick up only. They are anticipating expanding the program to include breakfast. For more information, check the ABSS website.

SAFE: If you are concerned about children who rely on school for meals, the Southern Alamance Family Empowerment Food Pantry is offering to help. Families in need can call 336-675-3859 for arrangements. If you are able to help, visit the website at https://www.safealamance.org/ and click on the tab for "current needs."